1. Title of the Practice

Social welfare practices for local community through various initiatives for community engagement.

2. Objectives of the Practice

- To offer opportunities for the students to develop team spirit and character building.
- To effect positive transformation within the village community by means of knowledge dissemination and collaborative efforts.
- To create an impact among the local community on sustainability and development.
- To an increased awareness and understanding among students concerning the challenges and customs prevalent within the local community.
- To encourage active student engagement in activities conducive to their holistic personal and skill development.
- To cultivate a scientific mind-set and a deep-seated commitment to social accountability among students.

3. The Context

In today's fraternity, there is a remarkable lack of consciousness among students regarding the predominant issues within their own communities. To bridge this gap, our institution has undertaken the responsibility to inculcate essential social values and raise a sense of societal duty among our students. The community engagement among the students is attained through the amalgamation of social outreach activities within the local community, which will contribute to the exhaustive progress of the local community. In an attempt to give practical experience, students are not only motivated but also authorized to organize events and programmes that address the needs of the local community. A persistent focus of our institution is to nurture our students so that they will be engaged in socially benevolent social outreach activities through national service scheme (NSS). By exposing students to the many and various problems faced by the local community, the institution strives to nurture the development of their emotional quotient. This journey will not only create awareness of local community problems but also nurture the feeling of a positive life outlook among the students. The National Service Scheme unit of our institute play a major role in these initiatives. Furthermore, the institution extends its reach through a series of outreach programs and invited lectures, benefiting the wider community. By focusing to these plans, the institution seeks to fortify its commitment to holistic education, wherein students are prepared not only for personal success but also to make meaningful contribution as responsible and empathetic members of society

4. The Practice

NSS Unit: The NSS unit at Atma Malik Institute of Technology and Research extend students an opportunity to participate in community service and cultivate a strong connection to the nation's development tasks. NSS volunteers devote themselves to uplifting the underprivileged, directing to improve their quality of life. Every year, a multiple of activities are organized to direct the enthusiasm and aspirations of the youth toward constructive endeavors. They actively educate the community on important issues such as health-care, sanitation, pollution, organic farming, plastic free society, energy conservation, rain harvesting and more. Regular initiatives including health camps and sanitation campaigns are conducted both on campus and in nearby villages, aiming to create awareness and motivate peoples to contribute to a cleaner and healthy environment.

5. Evidence of Success:

List of programs conducted and appreciations received

1. Social Extension outreached Activity to create awareness regarding Voters Day (25/01/2024)

7. Social Outreach Activity under NSS on cleanliness at Bhavse Village – (02/02/2024)
8. Field Visit regarding Unnat Maharashtra Abhiyan (UMA)- (02/02/2024)

Students who actively engaged in this program have been extend awareness within the institution, inspiring their peers also to join the social cause. Participation of students in social activities has improved their social bonding, making better relationships with peers and local community adults. The connection to the broader community has instilled a sense of responsibility and civic duty, influencing students to behave in ways that contribute positively to their community. Plantation programmes among students not only benefited the environment but also contributed to the holistic development of individuals, shaping responsible and environmentally conscious citizens for the future.

6. Problems Encountered

The prominent challenge is the lack of active student participation. While some students are genuinely interested in contributing to the society, others view these programs as additional burdens on their already busy academic schedules. Convincing and motivating a diverse student body to actively engage and commit time to such initiatives can be a major problem. Additionally, ensuring the sustainability and long-term impact of these programs is a concern. Sustaining student interest and involvement beyond a single event or project is a hurdle that requires careful planning and innovative strategies. Coordinating with external agencies, local communities, and NGOs also proved to be challenging. Misalignment of expectations and goals between the institution and these external entities hindered the smooth execution of the initiatives

Resources Required

The successful execution of our plans depends on dedicated faculty and financial support to coordinate events effectively. Provision of transportation for students traveling to villages is essential. Adherence to policy mandates communication with local authorities for camp approvals. It's imperative to engage students in immersive community living to drive change and collaboration with service units. Lastly, evaluation tools and mechanisms are essential to assess the effectiveness and impact of the activities, enabling refinement and improvement for future outreach endeavors.
